Tranquillizers Big Business

VANCOUVER (CP)—One-third of all prescriptions written in Canada today are for tranquillizers, says a Canadian Mental Health Association official.

"The figure proves one thing," executive secretary George Kenwood told a service club. "Mental disorders are becoming too large a problem for people to ignore much longer."

PLEAS, PRESSURE MOUNTING TO KEEP TCA IN VICTORIA

Departure 'Unthinkable' Says Publicity Chief

Strong pleas to Trans-Canada Air Lines to maintain its Victoria-Vancouver-Seattle plane service are being made by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau.

And the Junior Chamber of Commerce has urged TCA to continue its service here.

"It's unthinkable this should even consider for a minute leaving here," bureau commissioner George I. Warren said last night.

Pleas of both organizations were stated in telegrams to TCA president G. R. McGregor in Montreal.

Text of the wire from G. Conway Parrott, chamber president, stated: "This chamber appreciates the service TCA has offered here in the past and urges an early reconsideration by the directors of your proposed decision to withdraw from the coast service."

MEETING YESTERDAY

Meetings took place yesterday between officials of PWA and various interested Victoria parties including the Chamber of Commerce.

Questions were asked about the adequacy of PWA's equipment to handle Victoria-Vancouver traffic, particularly in emergencies such as occurred last summer during the ferry strike.

Assurances were also asked that PWA would provide connecting facilities with TCA transcontinental flights.

It was pointed out that PWA's proposed daily scheduled service called for the first flight to leave Patricia Bay each day at 8 a.m.

ATLANTIC MERCURY

This would not allow Victoria passengers to board the popular TCA Atlantic Mercury, which leaves Vancouver each day at 8 a.m. unless TCA made its own connection with Pat Bay.

A PWA spokesman said the proposed schedule was only tentative and could be adapted to meet community requirements.

Mr. Warren's wire did not mention the application of PWA to take over the triangle air service between the three cities, but clearly indicated fear the tourist business would suffer if TCA abandons the service.

"Victoria has been progressively increasing its tourist business," the wire said, in part. "During the past years it has appreciated the services operated by TCA between Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

"The many citizens of this area are extremely disappointed at the recent announcement that TCA might withdraw these services and we earnestly ask you and your directors to reconsider and to continue to operate this needed and appreciated service."

Mr. Warren said it had always been considered that Victoria was the western terminus of TCA.

"Now they are taking that away from us," he said.

FIRST LOAD

William Mattick, local bulb farmer, who shipped the first load of Easter daffodils in eastern Canada by TCA in 1948 and who has used this service ever since, said he was disturbed by the proposed changes.

He asked if PWA would guarantee that the rate of moving flowers to the east would not be increased if it took over the TCA Victoria-Vancouver flight.

"At present it costs only 50 cents a hundred pounds extra for us to ship to the east from Victoria than it does from Vancouver," he said. "I want to know if PWA will ship daffodils for transhipment to TCA in Vancouver for only 50 cents a hundred pounds, which is what we are paying just now."

Mr. Mattick said that officials promised him they would

Dikes Fall

Rains Empty Cities

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Thousands of people were evacuated from their homes in Ohio Wednesday night as heavy rains caused rivers and streams to overflow into cities and rural areas.

Bridges and dikes collapsed under the torrent of water.

HARDEST HIT

By far the hardest hit town was Mount Vernon where an estimated one-third of the city's 15,000 people were removed from their homes.

Other cities were virtually isolated as surrounding highways became impassable because of high water.

Tornadoes or tornadic winds ripped into Mississippi, Alabama and Kentucky.

DEATH TOLL 30

At least 30 deaths were related to the severe weather, including auto accidents and over-exertion.

St. Louis was nearly paralyzed by sleet and freezing rain that snapped power lines and made streets and highways dangerous.

FAR-RANGING STORM

The vast storm ranged from the Rockies to the Appalachians and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf states. A sub-zero cold wave promising temperatures down to 25 degrees below zero, moved into the plains behind the storm front.

There was no real let-up in sight. The U.S. weather bureau forecast more snow, sleet and freezing rains in the north and thunderstorms, plus possible tornadoes, through parts of Tennessee, Georgia, the western Carolinas, southeast Kentucky and southern Virginia.

RIOT IN BUS

In Chicago, a riot developed when a bus was rescheduled because of the storm. The bus tried to pass a gang of 20 teen-agers going home from high school. When the bus was forced to stop, a youth inside pulled the emergency cord. The youths stormed into the bus and beat and kicked the driver and a passenger who tried to assist him.

Accidents Pile Up as Sleet Pours Down

Hunched dejectedly on rain-swept curb, driver Leonard Sudlow, involved in three-car crash on Blanshard yesterday, is approached by Cpl. Joe Barlow. He was typical of many Victoria motorists who found sleet-slick streets and poor visibility added up to accidents. A harried city police-traffic department was still investigating assorted collisions until late into the night, and injury total stood at seven. See story on Page 21.—(Colonist photo by Bud Kinsman.)

Monopoly Cracked

CPA to Fly TCA Route

Success Saluted

A message of congratulation was sent yesterday to Canadian Pacific Airlines by Victoria Chamber of Commerce on the company's success in acquiring the right to operate a transcontinental service.

G. Conway Parrott, Chamber president, also asked CPA in his message for early advice as to the inclusion of Victoria airport on some of its company's services.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian Pacific Airlines Wednesday cracked Trans Canada Air Lines' long-held monopoly on transcontinental service, but got only a part of what it wanted.

Privately-owned CPA will be allowed to move into a limited amount of main-line territory in Canada previously held for the publicly-owned TCA, Transport Minister Hees announced in the Commons.

The step backing up a finding of the air transport board, opened up the first chink in TCA's transcontinental main-line monopoly since the public company was founded in 1935.

As the board put it after a bitter fight between CPA and TCA, and as approved by the transport minister, CPA should operate a scheduled

Doukhobor Trek

Russia Silent On Sect

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has received no indication whatever from Russia that it would accept emigrating members of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect, Justice Minister Fulton said Wednesday.

He was replying in the Commons to Harold Winch (CCF-Vancouver East), who asked whether the government offer of financial assistance for emigrating Doukhobors still stands.

Mr. Fulton said representatives of the Doukhobor sect have been informed that the offer of passage assistance still stands "when and if they fulfil the conditions."

One of these is that the Canadian government must receive an indication from the Soviet government that it is ready to accept the Freedomites in Russia.

At Trail, the Kootenay and Boundary Citizens Committee decided to ask the B.C. government to set an Aug. 15 deadline on an offer under which Doukhobors may get preferential treatment in buying lands on which they now live.

The committee believes that after Aug. 15 the lands should be thrown open for public purchase.

RANDOLPH CHURCHILL

Randolph Loses Bearings

LONDON (UPI)—Randolph Churchill, son of Sir Winston Churchill, got his election campaign off to a false start yesterday when he started poll-ducking in the wrong district.

He called a press conference at a Bournemouth hotel to announce his arrival to "test the political temperature." He said he hoped the local voters would call on him to discuss the state of things in Bournemouth East.

"They won't come here," a reporter told him.

"Why not?" asked Churchill.

"Well, this is Bournemouth West."

"Well," replied Churchill, "I must get a map and sally forth."

'Close to an Abuse'

Judge Rebukes B.C. Government

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia government was chastised in open court Wednesday by a B.C. Supreme Court justice for its on-and-off legal action over a brief plywood mill strike.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson said the government's decision not to proceed in the case comes "pretty close to an abuse of the process of the court."

Labor Minister Wacks applied last Friday for the court to rule on the legality of a wildcat strike by 400 members of the International Woodworkers of America at nearby Port Moody plant of Canadian Collieries Resources Ltd.

The men walked out Wednesday because an employee was dismissed for carelessness. They returned to work Monday and Mr. Wicks announced he was dropping the court action.

The action was scheduled to have been heard Wednesday.

"That is all very well, but there was a point of law to be determined," Mr. Justice Manson said.

The justice said that in future such cases, he will want assurance that the proceedings are something more than a mere threat." The court took a "serious view" of the discontinuance and did not "regard the fact that the strike has been settled as good cause" for the government action.

Attitude to Burns 'Mean,' Cries Scot

LONDON (Reuters)—The government came under fire in the House of Commons on Wednesday night for its "miserable" attitude to the 200th anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns.

The government is having letters mailed Jan. 25 at Burns' birthplace of Alloway postmarked "Alloway, Ayr" instead of just "Ayr."

South Ayrshire's Labor MP, Emrys Hughes, called it a "mean and miserable so-called concession."

If the post office could not publish a stamp of Burns, would it allow use of Russian stamps commemorative of Burns, he asked.

Mikoyan Across

The plane was sent to Argentia, Newfoundland, to pick up 35 passengers, including Mikoyan, forced down for a night after another plane developed engine trouble.

Close Strait to Fishing? U.S. Idea 'Bad-Mannered'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Americans stirred up a hornet's nest at an open meeting of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission here Wednesday with a proposal that the Strait of Juan de Fuca be closed for all net fishing.

Members of the American advisory board, which speaks for the salmon industry, but has no regulatory powers, said Canadian fishermen are depleting Puget Sound stocks of pink and coho salmon in what they called "nursery" waters.

In normal years Canadian seiners get the bulk of their Fraser River catch in Juan de Fuca Strait around Port San Juan and Sooke.

They said it would be impossible to regulate a 50-50 division of the pink and sockeye catches between Canadians and Americans if Canadians were barred from their own most valuable fishing grounds.

No Change Likely

MPs Complaining Over Royal Trip

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker Wednesday turned aside Commons' complaints about places omitted from the itinerary of the Queen's visit to Canada this summer.

He said it was impossible to make changes from day to day to meet various members' requests. The trip was to enable the Queen to see as much of Canada as possible consistent with comfort and "reasonable rest."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he could not hold out hope of any material alteration in regard to the itinerary as already published."

Disappointed Says Bennett

Premier Bennett said yesterday he is disappointed the provincial government was not consulted by Ottawa about the itinerary of Queen Elizabeth's July visit.

The premier said he has received numerous complaints. People are blaming B.C. for leaving out certain communities, he said.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

WILL the provincial government take a second look at the Indian liquor rights?

During the session of the legislature which opens today, a number of people will be watching Messrs. Bennett and Bonner to see which way they jump.

I can't presume to offer advice from this corner. But I can report some facts.

* * *

1. Indians are not now permitted to buy beer, wine or spirits by the bottle, drink in their homes or in anyone else's house. They can drink in bars and beer parlors.

2. The provincial government has the power to give Indians full liquor rights. That power is conferred on each province by the Indian Act.

3. The federal government is willing to move as soon as the province passes a law allowing Indians to buy liquor and have it in their homes.

4. With one exception, liquor can not be forced on Indian bands who don't want it. The Indian Act provides that a plebiscite should be held on the reserves.

5. Some critics say that liquor rules would be impossible to administer if one reserve went dry and the one next to it went wet. Nonsense. That need not happen. In such a plebiscite, adjoining reserves can be lumped together as one unit, and the majority vote will determine the result. That's the only way in which liquor could be forced on bands that didn't want it.

6. The Indian affairs branch stands ready to take a vote on the reserves, as soon as the provincial government makes it legal for Indians to have liquor. Officials of the branch will not take any action until the province gives them the go-ahead signal.

7. A number of Indian bands in Canada—particularly treaty Indians in Alberta—don't want liquor at any price. That's why the plebiscite clauses are written into the Indian Act.

* * *

There have been reports that Premier Bennett offered liquor rights to Indians on condition that the federal government change the Indian Act to allow all natives to have liquor, without plebiscites.

I don't like to believe such a report, because it puts the premier in the position of bullying "dry" Indians into accepting liquor on their reserves, against their will.

And that would be a strange position indeed for a teetotal premier to be in.

Not even the B.C. Indians themselves have the right to force liquor on Indians in other provinces, by demanding a change in the federal Indian Act. If they want liquor, they need only vote for it. But first, the provincial government must change the liquor law to make it possible.

I have heard that provincial cabinet spokesmen told a B.C. Native Brotherhood delegation that the province was ready to act, as soon as the federal government cleared the way.

However, I don't like to believe that report, either. It would mean that the provincial government was guilty of trying to confuse the Indians with buck-passing, double talk and something very close to deceit.

This would be an ignoble thing to do, and I can't bring myself to believe it of our government.

Of course government officials know quite well that the Indian Act gives B.C. power to act. They know that Ottawa will go along with what Victoria decides. They only have to read the Indian Act, and talk to the Indian affairs branch, to learn that the next move is up to the province.

And it is British Columbia's move. Don't let anyone try to tell you otherwise.

* * *

If a new and shriller note of hysteria has crept into this column of late, blame the radio.

Recently I have been writing a series of radio talks about British Columbia's Indians, based on the material I gathered for this newspaper last year.

I have been practising with a tape recorder in an effort to make my voice sound less like that of a neurotic bluejay.

A patient Canadian Broadcasting Corporation producer decided after a number of trials that I sounded almost human.

It was an unusual experience for me, using my voice and my brain at the same time. In the ordinary way I use one or the other; very often neither, but seldom both. After many rehearsals I came close to achieving this gymnastic feat.

I did it at the cost of some twitching and fretting. My fingernails are gnawed down to the wrist.

However, the talks will begin tonight, at 10.15 p.m., on radio station CBU, Vancouver. There will be eight of them, spread over eight weeks.

'Pathetic' Effort By Unions Scored

Victoria Labor Council delegates were told last night that response by local unions to the "do-it-now" campaign to promote winter work has been "pathetic" so far.

Delegate Don Douglas reported only 11 unions (out of 70 affiliated with VLC) supported the campaign by purchasing advertisements. He called for others to come forward before the noon deadline today.

VLC called on all local unions to send letters to Greater Victoria municipalities and the inter municipal committee requesting establishment of a family court.

* * *

Meeting attended by representatives of all local unions affiliated with VLC will be held shortly to discuss ways and means of combatting unemployment.

Lived 18 Months in Well

Buried alive for 18 months, this German shepherd dog is tended by a veterinary surgeon at Naples, Italy, after being rescued from a 100-foot well. Villagers at nearby town of Afragola said dog was one of three puppies thrown into the dry well by a farmer who wanted to get rid of them. Surviving the fall which killed its brothers, the dog lived on rainwater and garbage dumped into shaft by villagers who were unaware of animal's existence until a passer-by heard its faint cries.

Labor Men Split Over Navy Job

An immediate start on refit of a naval ship to provide jobs at HMC Dockyard was demanded last night by Victoria Labor Council, despite strong protests from delegates that it was "petitioning for armaments."

Delegates voted to send a telegram to Defence Minister Pearkes demanding an immediate start on the "large-scale" refit due on HMCS Cape Breton.

The telegram said: "Unemployed shipyard workers are tired of 'following John' to the unemployment insurance offices week after week."

One delegate jumped to his feet and said: "I'm opposed. Labor can petition the development of this country in a dozen ways, without demanding the building of armaments." He was backed by several others.

There was loud applause when another delegate shouted: "Let's ask them to build a merchant marine."

Still another said he'd "go back to relief camps and riding the rods" rather than back the proposal to petition for armaments.

George Bamfield, Electricians' Union, who proposed the original motion to draft the telegram, said he wished to make it clear that the refit was to be carried out shortly in any event.

"Cape Breton is a 10,000-ton vessel used to train artificers," he said. "A workshop ship, in other words."

Dutch Line Flagship Due Here Next Week

Flagship of the Holland-America Line's Pacific fleet, the 11,366-ton Dinteldyk, is due here early Wednesday. On arrival from Crofton, she will load 487,000 feet of lumber at Ogden Point. She leaves Thursday for Portland and the U.K. via Panama.

Dinteldyk is the newest of the Dutch line's ships operating in this area and has visited Victoria on two previous occasions. She has accommodation for 60 passengers.

A soccer game between crew members of the Dinteldyk and a Victoria High School team will be held Wednesday afternoon, weather permitting.

Maritime Museum of B.C. has temporarily closed its doors for renovation of the premises on Esquimalt Road and general rearranging of exhibits. The face-lifting is expected to take a month or more.

The naval museum recently acquired an adjacent building for its purposes, and the two are now linked by an enclosed passageway. Normally the buildings are open from 11.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m., Wednesday to Sunday, inclusive.

It looks like a busy weekend ahead for Victoria's port authorities, with almost a dozen merchant ships due to berth here in a three or four-day period. However, ship agents say some may be diverted to other ports or be delayed.

In port at present is the Norma, taking on 912,000 board feet of lumber and 415 tons of plywood for the U.K. Other sizable lumber shipments will be made on the Lawak to South Africa, and the Francisville to the U.S. Atlantic seaboard. Both ships are due to berth at Ogden Point docks tomorrow.

At Cowichan Bay, the National Power is completing loading of 1,395,000 board feet of lumber for U.S. Atlantic ports.

Other merchant shipping in up-Island ports includes the Demeterton and La Bahia, Crofton; Wathemo, Chemainus; Glenmoor, Tahsis; Bessenggen, Barranduna and Union Enterprise, Alberni.

Mass Madness Possible

Gas Can Befuddle Army

General's Macabre Joke Underlines Horrors

WASHINGTON (AP)—Testifying before a congressional committee, behind locked doors, the general told a little joke.

The story was abou a man who went to visit a friend in the hospital and found him all bandaged up, with a broken arm and one leg in a plaster cast.

Patient: "What in the world happened?"

Visitor: "You remember the party Saturday night? Well, you got up on the dresser and said you could fly to the other side of the room. You jumped off and didn't make it."

"Why didn't you stop me?"

"Stop you? I was betting you could do it!"

Maj.-Gen. William M. Creasy, then chief of the U.S. Army chemical corps, related the joke to illustrate how secret new types of nerve gas —or "nerve discombobulators" as he called them—might be used to subdue the enemy in a conflict involving germ or chemical warfare.

Behavior Pattern Upset

"The point is," said Creasy, "that it (the gas) will do these things to you. You will be acting very irrationally and the other people who have also been subjected to it will not know it, either. Everybody will be on the bandwagon."

Creasy's censored testimony, when published, did not elaborate on the weird effects of certain nerve gases beyond saying they would "upset your behavior pattern."

But in citing "gases that affect the minds of men . . . and break down a people's will to fight," the general seemed to be hinting at a new type of warfare — without guns, bombs or bayonets—in which victory would be achieved without killing or maiming on either side.

The defence department was issued a television film showing:

(1) A cat pouncing on a frightened mouse and (2) the same cat, sprayed with a secret gas, backing away in terror from a mouse.

While the Pentagon shies away from almost all discussion of germ warfare, further enlightenment about these "psychochemical" weapons has come from Dr. E. L. Kropa of the Battelle Memorial Institute, Columbus, Ohio, which engages in numerous defence research projects.

Dr. Kropa described a chemical known as LSD25 or lysergic acid.

"To give you a little insight as to how active this material is, it has been estimated that less than a pound would cause all the inhabitants of New York City to take on a schizoid reaction"—i.e., an emotional disturbance marked by such things as delusions and hallucinations.

Dog Fight Spreads Havoc

He was too busy breaking up a dog fight that held up traffic and left a beagle dead, a cocker spaniel badly mauled and a Golden Labrador under treatment by a veterinarian.

He picked up six unlicensed dogs after the fray, all of which had to be bailed out by their owners.

Cause of the battle: A she dog.

One of the first official photographs of the Polaris AX-1, shows it being launched. The AX test vehicles are the latest in a series developed for the navy's Polaris. The Polaris is a solid-propellant guided missile, designed for a range of about 1,500 nautical miles, and lighter and smaller than other ballistic missiles of comparable range.

Navy Admits Truth; Missile Fell Short

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. navy was forced yesterday to tell the truth about a Polaris missile test at Cape Canaveral Monday after originally billing the experiment as "fully successful."

It noted after being asked about reports that the missile flew only about 60 miles toward its 800-mile goal. Last week, the air force and its Atlas missile suffered somewhat similar fates.

The episodes appeared to illustrate a reported growing tendency in the U.S. armed services to let favorable impressions stand unless challenged.

Moderating Air Policy

CIVIL aviation in Canada was lifted into a new and brighter phase this week by the decision of the Air Transport Board, accepted by the federal government, to permit controlled limited competition on the transcontinental flightways. Transport Minister Hees' announcement of permission granted by the air board to Canadian Pacific Airlines to establish a Vancouver-Montreal daily service, via Winnipeg and Toronto, for carrying international and domestic passengers will be thoroughly welcomed. It is true that the charter will be subject to review in two years' time and that one transcontinental flight daily alone is authorized, but here is a definite break with the restricted air policy of the past.

It will be for CPA to show under the privilege that this limited easement of the former air monopoly not only was earned and essential to its own world-wide air connections, but also that domestically the new cross-country service will strengthen civil aviation in the nation. There should be enough business in the Dominion for both TCA and CPA in the long haul to justify this moderated form of competition, without damage to either and with only good results for the country as a whole. Under proper regulation, not only air passenger but also air freight service could be stepped up in Canada with advantage, in keeping with the growing needs of a nation that has long been air-minded. The government is to be commended on enabling this start.

Conversely, Victoria and Vancouver Island would seem to have run into difficulties through the sudden proposal of TCA to turn over its Patricia Bay flights to Pacific Western Airlines and virtually step clear of the field. The objections already voiced by the Chamber of Commerce and Mayor Percy Scurrah have been largely over the withdrawal of TCA from direct Island flight services which it pioneered and carried to a highly satisfactory state of public convenience and frequency. Also assurance is certainly needed that TCA will not come to regard the Island as "off" its main line, at a time when from every standpoint this connection will become more important than ever.

While the latter move has yet to be argued before the Air Transport Board, something more than verbal guarantees will be required by way of assurance to Victoria and Vancouver Island that a substituted feeder service could fill the bill and expand as the needs of the future will demand.

Confusing Situation

THE ruling of the Ontario Supreme Court that the careless driving law of that province is invalid is causing a good deal of confusion and uncertainty in other provinces with similar laws on their statute books. British Columbia is one of them.

In Ontario the careless driving section of the provincial code was held to be not enforceable because it trespassed on the Criminal Code of Canada. The attorney-general's department of B.C. is satisfied, however, that on the authority of a B.C. Supreme Court ruling some time ago it is in order for prosecutions to proceed, though Mr. Bonner adds that it is open to persons accused to ask for adjournment of trial pending the result of an appeal from the Ontario decision. The situation therefore is anything but satisfactory to the magistrates, the police or those motorists accused.

Nevertheless this impasse might in the end prove beneficial if it prompts Parliament to revise the Criminal Code so as to provide for a charge meeting the purpose for which the provincial laws were intended. Whether by way of Dominion or provincial statute it is necessary for there to be machinery for the prosecution of motorists who drive dangerously but not grossly so—the "in between" cases deserving punishment but not long imprisonment.

In the 1955 revision of the Criminal Code the section relating to "dangerous" driving was eliminated, and the police if they wish to prosecute under the Dominion statutes now must do so under the rewritten section relating to criminal negligence. This has vastly more serious connotations than a charge of careless driving, and subsequent experience has shown both the reluctance of police to prosecute and the difficulty of obtaining convictions.

Criminal negligence is defined as wanton or reckless disregard of the lives or safety of other people. There are many careless practices by motorists which should be punishable but which fall far short of wantonness, being due more to inadvertence, inexperience or faulty judgment. Many respectable, well-meaning motorists have been convicted of careless driving in circumstances which certainly would not have warranted a prosecution for criminal negligence.

By means of the careless driving section of the provincial code the police have been able to use prosecutions for the purpose of education as well as punishment, which after all is the more desirable object. Without recourse to a law covering relatively minor irregularities efforts to promote safe practices would be frustrated.

Too Much in Too Little Time

THE outline of the national program for the Queen's visit this summer does not suggest that the theme of "meet the people" previously announced will have too much validity. It savors more of a helter-skelter dash across Canada that will permit of only fleeting contact with the places visited. There will be disappointment on this score in many communities.

Victoria and Vancouver Island combined, for instance, are allotted less than 48 hours of the royal presence. Allowing for required hours of sleep and even a minimum of official functions there will not be time left for the Queen to see much of either the Island or its citizens. The same situation will occur in most of the communities listed on the itinerary.

It seem apparent that federal officials have been too ambitious. In their eagerness to convey Her Majesty to places never before on a royal schedule, and to make the tour comprehensive to a degree, they have fashioned a program better suited to a six months' visit than a six weeks' one. The program is formidable, so much so it might daunt even so dedicated a monarch as Queen Elizabeth.

It shows insufficient concern for the Queen herself, also. To travel 15,000 miles and visit no fewer than 78 communities—an average of almost two a day—in addition to the inevitable and numerous receptions and ceremonial occasions, is to place a heavy burden on royal shoulders. The physical and mental strain imposed by packing so much into so short a time seems both inconsiderate and unwise.

The travel sequence alone is enough to leave only a kaleidoscopic blur in the minds of the royal visitors, with consequent lack of intimacy and opportunity for real appreciation of the Canadian scene or Canadian ways. As for Canadians themselves they are obviously going to be deprived of any prolonged view of the Queen they would like to see and meet unhurriedly at close quarters. Royal tours should be better arranged than this.

Interpreting the News

Unwise Decision Made

By WARREN ROGERS, Jr.
Associated Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Berlin has been a recurrent hot spot in the cold war because of its geography, because it is an island in Soviet-held East Germany and nowhere attached to the Allied zone.

How did this happen? Why did the Western allies agree to it?

The answers are not clear. But there are good clues in the published memoirs and statements of President Eisenhower, Sir Winston Churchill, former president Harry S Truman, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery and others.

A perusal of these documents points to these conclusions:

The United States, Britain and France trusted Russia and were double-crossed.

They underestimated the ability of the West's armies to capture Berlin ahead of the Russians, who were closer but facing stronger German resistance.

They generally discounted the political side of war in their zeal to win quick military victory. Churchill, however, cautioned frequently this would lead to trouble.

Thinking Aloud

Gerald Waring

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THE Cleveland Plain Dealer is concerned with the "junk" that clutters up the proverbial attic because, it says, most Americans suffer from an inability to part with anything they ever owned.

They are not alone. In the words of a once favorite song, everybody's doing it, and has been for aeons. I daresay even Adam, when he was put out of the garden, took last year's fig leaf with him.

Men, perhaps, are the biggest hoarders of all. Some of this derives from a liking for old things, which is why if left alone they'd never appear in new clothes. A new hat, for instance, can't compare with an old one for ease, comfort and familiarity.

Actually it's a sad moment for a man when he has to cast off a dearly beloved suit or overcoat and put on a new garment. Something goes out of life for him then.

* * *

With milady it is much different. A new hat is not a matter of mere dress but of mental uplift; it's an inspiration, a cleansing of the spirit. It is also, often, one of the wonders of the world.

But it is not so much discarded clothes the Cleveland paper is worrying about as the bric-a-brac, old furniture and souvenirs that gradually fill the attic or spare room or wherever it is people store their superfluous belongings.

Half of these things at least should be thrown out as useless but that haunting refrain—"it might come in handy"—intervenes to check ruthless clearing.

Just as well, too, else church bazaars and rummage sales would go out of fashion. It is probably these functions, by the way, which act as firewardens by reducing the bulk of articles kept because "we might need it some day."

That day seldom dawns, but we think it might, so into the collection goes a silver candlestick made obsolete by style, a table replaced by another one, a coffee pot that's lost its lid, a chair that needs new decor, or any one of a hundred other items once looked on with delight.

It is the personal things which are hardest to dispose of, however. The wrench of parting is too great.

* * *

Shall I throw out, for instance, callously after all these years, the heliograph glass I've carted about in successive boxes for decades. Once it reflected the Eastern sun 40 miles and it would make a good shaving mirror. That was the intention, which I know now shall never be carried out. But have I the heart to dump it in the garbage can?

Shall I dispose in equally summary manner of a pair of football boots no good to anyone but a reminder to my ego that once I was young and strong?

Of course I won't. The pride of possession is too strong.

We are all men and women of property, or most of us are. We hate to let go of things that are ours, even when they are outworn or outmoded. This is exceeding strange, too, in an age when new things are not only the fashion but the basis of a turn-over economy.

As for books, now, when like yours truly most bookmen have shelves loaded with volumes, aged, faded, of no importance but never opened, the proper thing would be a huge bonfire in the back yard.

But that won't come about either. The Cleveland Plain Dealer is pleading a forlorn hope.

Reports from Ottawa

YOU need more than a program to know the players in the capital's greatest show, the House of Commons. But once you know them, you're in for some of the most fascinating entertainment extant today.

Commons speeches can be dull. But when the House scintillates it cannot be equalled on a stage, because these men and women in politics are not playing. This is for keeps.

The emotions and tensions of the Commons are those of the Roman arena. Instead of muscular naked bodies straining in conflict, using net and trident to entrap and slay, we witness a much more sophisticated struggle of men armed with sharp minds and quick tongues, seeking to entrap one another and slay in the political sense.

You see a prime minister adulated by some and reviled by others. You know his strengths: his superb ability as a political strategist and parliamentary ringmaster, his sincere ambition to enhance the wellbeing, the stature and the service to mankind of this country, his liberalism, his resoluteness of purpose and action. You know his weaknesses: his overweening ego, his personal vanity, his domineering tendencies, his hastiness of decision coupled in apparent contradiction with a habit of procrastination.

You recall times when his words have soared to the heavens in passionate defence of freedom's principles. You recall other words of hypocrisy and pettiness of spirit.

* * *

You know something of the pressures, the conflicting considerations and the anxieties which bedevil this man. When principles, policies, politics and personalities conflict, what gives?

Across from him sits his arch-foe, the leader of the opposition. Here is a man beaten last spring, back into the fight, grinning often, awaiting opportunities to belittle the administration's achievements, to turn the people against the government, to destroy and replace the prime minister.

You know something of the apprehensions and uncertainties of the prime minister in the face of this challenge—the pitfalls he must try to sidestep, the weaknesses in his own ranks against which he must try to guard. You know he has to be aware of such trivia as the romantic attachments which two of his ministers have for their secretaries, as well as of the booby traps in the plausible-sounding words that emanate from the Kremlin.

* * *

With a great depth of insight such as this, newsmen cover the Commons. The fray in the House not infrequently involves them, as the other day when Trade Minister Churchill promised newsmen he would supply them with copies of the 1958 economic forecast as soon as he had tabled it in the Commons.

Before he had a chance to table it, Opposition Leader Pearson asked Prime Minister Diefenbaker to make it public. Diefenbaker, unaware of Churchill's intention, declined to table it pending House action on an opposition motion for its production.

A few minutes later Diefenbaker rose again, after Churchill had whispered urgently in his ear. The PM said that because this procedure, i.e., waiting for action on the motion, would prevent the Liberals from receiving the forecast in time to use it in the current Throne Speech debate, he had asked Churchill to table the report immediately.

Subsequently Churchill refused with great surliness to provide copies for news correspondents, saying he was under no legal obligation to do so. He apparently suspects a reporter tipped off Pearson as to his intention to table the document, thus enabling Pearson to embarrass Diefenbaker.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

IT was with the greatest pleasure that I heard that a middle-aged friend of mine, an actuary in an insurance company, had been left an apartment house, two up-town stores and seven houses by a shrewd old aunt of his who recently died. She was, in a sense, his mother. She had brought him up from his 11th year, had financed him through the university, where he had proved an honor graduate in mathematics, and had exhorted and encouraged him all through the years.

It is true she interfered to a considerable measure in his life. She had strongly resisted two or three romances he had had in his younger years. Indeed, he remained a bachelor, living with his aunt. And she lived on and on, into her eighties.

But she encouraged him. She spurred him on. Even in his fifties she exhorted him to stand up straight and be a man, to walk with purpose, to stride along, to take life with zest, just as she had when he was a youth going to college, and she paying the bills.

But she died. And left him around $14,000 a year, income.

I met him looking in a fishing tackle window yesterday.

"What I like," he said, after we had exalted over his fortune, "is, I don't have to walk fast any more."

And, slowly, we went into the tackle shop.

Washington Angle

Reciprocity Missing

By DAVID LAWRENCE

IF anything were needed to expose the humbug and hypocrisy of the Moscow government, it has been fully demonstrated in the paradox of Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan's tour of this country. While he openly criticizes the government of the United States and its policies, no American, whether an official or an unofficial visitor, may do likewise inside the so-called "republics" of the Soviet Union.

Already Tass, the official news agency of the Soviet government, is telling its readers and listeners that the people of the United States do not agree with the American government's policies and that Mikoyan is certainly winning converts to his cause.

Imagine some American official going to Russia and touring that country, making outspoken criticisms of the men in the Kremlin and trying to drive a wedge between the people and their government! This can be only a wild fancy. For nothing like it would be tolerated by the dictatorship which rules the Soviet Union.

* * *

The Soviet Union has had some distinguished American visitors, including Senator Hubert Humphrey, one of the leaders of the opposition party in Congress and a high-ranking member of the senate foreign relations committee. But, though he spent eight hours in conference with Premier Khrushchev at the Kremlin, what the senator said or later wrote in defence of American policies or in criticism of Soviet policies was suppressed, by order of the government, in all the newspapers of the Soviet Union.

How can there be mutual trust or the beginnings of a "peaceful coexistence" when the rules that apply inside the Soviet Union are so hostile to the concept of free interchange between peoples? President Eisenhower told newsmen recently that he is in favor of more and more visits by prominent persons from the Soviet Union. But of what avail are these to be if access to the Soviet people is denied by the dictatorship in Moscow.

* * *

The Columbia Broadcasting System has, for example, been ordered to close its Moscow bureau, and accreditation has been withdrawn for its correspondent by the Soviet government. This was done to express Soviet disapproval of the televising over the CBS network in this country of a show about Stalin of the type found in historical novels.

Similarly, a National Broadcasting Company representative in Moscow was denied use of broadcast facilities because of some phrasing in one of his broadcasts which the Soviet government didn't like. The Soviets, moreover, spend millions of dollars each year jamming American radio broadcasts to Russia and countries in Eastern Europe.

Even more hypocritical is the Soviet government's attitude toward foreign newspapers and periodicals. It examines the policies of the publications and denies the admission of permanent correspondents representing any publication whose content the Soviets dislike. Yet the Congress of the United States admits to its press galleries persons from the Soviet Union in the guise of newsmen who are agents or employees of their own government in every sense of the word.

There is, in fact, no such thing today as reciprocity as between the Soviet government and our own government. It is the United States that gives constantly, while the Moscow government repeatedly says "No." Yet Mr. Mikoyan tells American audiences it is time for America to stop saying "No" to the various proposals relating to the future of Germany and other world problems which have been under incessant discussion between Moscow and Washington these last few years.

The reception given Mr. Mikoyan is being described in the Moscow press and radio as an indication that the American people do not agree with their own government. Such distortions are to be expected in a government-controlled press. When, however, it may be asked of Mr. Mikoyan, will the Soviet Union permit any American to stump Russia and tell them their dictatorship is bad and can be overthrown by force whenever the people, by concerted action, decide to do so? If Mr. Mikoyan says it can't be done here either, he may be referred, incongruous though it be, to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the so-called Yates case. This says it is constitutional for anybody—even a member of the Communist party of the Soviet Union—to come to America and preach the gospel of revolution.

Letters to the Editor

Racial Mixing Opposed

Reading B. Sheridan's letter in the Jan. 14 Colonist, one gathers that only a few agitators are opposed to racial discrimination though it is obvious to any reasoner that the people of a community are almost unanimously against race mixing. That a mark of distinction is shown in Canada to visitors "born in distant lands," can hardly be called "racial egotism" in all fairness.

To a great extent the future worth of our people depends on not opening our gates unrestrictedly to non-Europeans. Those of us who are concerned for the future of our country will understand we cannot afford to ignore heredity in the formation of character. We have the examples of what has happened elsewhere at the present time.

As of 1958, 55 per cent of the world's population are on the verge of starvation through over-population. Though we are a few years ahead of a crisis, why should we not help our descendants now, by eliminating immigrants? I see no reason why we should not.

Value for Outlay

I wish to thank you for the editorial, "Curriculum Deficiencies." The investigating committee will have various aspects of the case to enquire into. I would briefly state a few which are very important and need early solutions.

Several acres which have to be maintained could be used to a better advantage than to enclose schools and be used for a few hours monthly. Exercise is necessary, also recreation, but there is no need for parks around our high schools; they are provided elsewhere.

The school premises are in use for a fraction of the time for education of various types; they are closed for a third of the year, and open for a few hours a week during the school year.

Schooling is a business, and an expensive one. Full value should be rendered for the outlay by the parties responsible, and disciplinary measures afforded them.

The hours could be increased above grade 6, the vacation period reduced by at least a month, conventions attended in the staff's own time, all fancy subjects removed from the curriculum or indulged in after regular hours.

The age for matriculation to be 16 years, and studies after that age to be paid for by the parents.

Pensioners on small pensions to be relieved of the school tax; they have brought up their families without high wages and family allowance and are now paying for services of which they receive no benefit. The younger generation are well able to shoulder their own charges.

The power of the Greater Victoria school board should be kept within reasonable limit. Their refusal to release the property to the city fire hall was an illustration; they did not need it and you cannot have it.

FREDERICK JORDAN.

Hospital Sweepstakes

I agree, as do many more, with the writer in Friday's Colonist. There should be hospital sweepstakes.

Bingo, a form of gambling, is enabling some of our worthy fraternal organizations to do wonderful things for our community, besides making some lucky individuals very happy. Three or four sweepstake ticket sales a year would be a painless, happy way of helping ourselves get better hospitals and services.

Articulate Intelligence

In Canada there are now many citizens intelligent enough to be aware that Communist China is on her way to become one of the leading great powers—that before long she, Communist China, will have to be dealt with, reckoned with, by Canada, the same Canada that today refuses to even acknowledge her existence as a member of the community of nations.

It is common knowledge that the worst insult you can offer a person is to ignore him—treat him as if he were a sort of human poison-ivy. Surely to ignore in that way a whole country-ful of persons is a still greater insult.

Yet how many intelligent Canadians fully realize that to so ignore a big ambitious country, vibrant with energy, justly proud of her amazing leap forward in the last few years and 650,000,000 strong, is not only an insult to that country but to our intelligence as a people?

Although some of our leading influential citizens—industrialists, bankers, educators, have already been outspoken in their plea for recognition of Communist China, Ottawa still hesitates. Why?

Isn't it mainly because so many of us, in full agreement with those speakers, do not follow their lead and speak out. We haven't got "articulate intelligence."

JOHN McNAUGHTON.

Architectural Eyesores

The article in the Jan. 11 Colonist, based on an interview with a Rhodesian architect, "New Homes Ruining City," is a touchy subject, and discussing it might well mean treading on the toes of both builders and architects.

Mr. Rossen states that "the older houses are charming." They are—they are well built and many designed by real builders of the old school. Here and in Vancouver there are Elizabethan, Dutch colonial and some after the Italian and Spanish design.

Mr. Rossen is quoted as stating that many new houses are being ruined by bad designing. Agreed it is so, but it is the new builders, with their power tools and little knowledge of proper framing who are guilty.

But why blame the builders alone? What about the architects and the packing-box apartments? They have no architecture, unless you call a front entrance and windows in a flat wall architecture. Look at an oblong packing box and you get the idea. I am only a builder, but if I had been an architect I would have been ashamed to have prostituted my art and profession to design such.

I know that it is a question of cost, to suit speculators. There are many clever and brilliant architects here in B.C. and I think they must feel ashamed when architects from overseas see these eyesores in Victoria and Oak Bay.

There is also a suggestion in the article that ventilation might be a problem. Why not include sound-proofing? The old style of terrace houses in Britain, dating back 100 years (I lived in one) with a nine-inch brick wall between, was better sound-proofed than our houses and apartments here. Any old builder or bricklayer would know how.

B.C. High Schools Trail After Russia

* * *

Physics Years Behind

* * *

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian schools need more book work and fewer frills, says Commons member Fred Stinson.

The kids would like it too, he says.

Complacency has left Canadian schools two or more years behind Russian schools in the fields of mathematics and science, said Mr. Stinson, Progressive Conservative member for York Centre and former chairman of the North York township board of education.

STUDY QUOTED

Speaking in the Commons throne speech debate, he quoted from a study by Anthony Frisch, Brampton, Ont., school teacher, who reported Canadian high schools are behind Russian schools.

The report, he said, showed Ontario mathematic courses are about three years behind the Soviet, British Columbia high schools trailed the Russians by three years in physics and the Atlantic provinces were "even further behind."

REMEDIES URGED

Mr. Stinson said provincial education departments should revise their mathematics and science curricula, pay higher salaries to teachers and provide better equipment and scholarships.

Most of the day's debate was devoted to the unemployment problem.

Labor Minister Starr said the program will make "quite an improvement" on the unemployment picture, which in mid-December reached an estimated total of 440,000 jobless.

Erhart Regier (CCF, Burnaby-Coquitlam), accusing the government of breaking its election promises, said that leaving unattended the needs of the unemployed would do more to foster Communism than anything the Kremlin could do.

Weather Lowers Ensign

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Pearkes gave a non-committal reply in the Commons Wednesday when asked whether the Canadian Red Ensign will be flown over radar sites in the Arctic.

It will depend on the weather, he said.

The question came from Mervyn Hardie (L, Mackenzie River) who referred to Monday's announcement that the RCAF has taken over operational control of the DEW line from the United States air force.

Mr. Pearkes replied that "at the present time, owing to weather conditions, no flag is flying over these sites."

Government supporters roared with laughter.

Will the American flag continue to fly over these sites? asked Mr. Hardie.

"That will depend on weather conditions," replied Mr. Pearkes. Again, there was loud laughter from government members.

Since when, asked Opposition Leader Pearson, is the flying of the Canadian flag dependent on weather conditions in Canada?

"It is not customary to fly the Canadian flag or any other flag during severe weather conditions," replied Mr. Pearkes.

CANADA'S NATIONAL NEWSPAPER
ANNOUNCES THE OPENING OF A NEWS BUREAU IN VANCOUVER

Consistent with its policy of expanding national news coverage, The Globe and Mail has established a Vancouver Bureau. It will be housed in the newly constructed Burrard Building.

The Globe and Mail was the first English language newspaper from outside the province to set up a permanent bureau in Quebec. Now it has the distinction of being the first Eastern Canada newspaper to open a news bureau in British Columbia.

The decision to establish a Vancouver bureau was taken in recognition of the development of British Columbia, a province which holds a growing place in the national scene, and one which contributes importantly to the national economy.

The B.C. bureau rounds out The Globe and Mail's staff news coverage. It already has bureaus in London, Washington, Ottawa, New York and Quebec.

The Globe and Mail is the only Canadian newspaper to publish an Overseas Edition. It is printed by The Times in London. The new Vancouver bureau will ensure greater coverage for British Columbia in the Overseas Edition which has been extremely well received in the United Kingdom and Europe.

No other Canadian newspaper provides the special quality of Canadian news reporting which distinguishes The Globe and Mail.

CPA Cracks Monopoly

REVIEW PLANNED

The arrangement would be reviewed in two years.

Mr. Hees also said that where "limited controlled" competition would result in improving the position of regional air carriers, this should be authorized, and there would be an investigation of this phase.

The decision will give CPA connections with its international operations across Canada, and in between, Canadian Pacific will be able to pick up and let down passengers within Canada.

Both these moves are big concessions for CPA, which now runs international services out of certain Canadian points but cannot pick up passengers at other points.

In Vancouver, Pacific Western Airlines officials hailed the air transport board recommendation as "a milestone in Canadian aviation."

MUCH LESS REVENUE

There was no estimate as to how the final finding would differ from what Canadian Pacific sought from the board, though certainly it would be much less in terms of revenue.

CPA wanted five runs, on varying routes, between Vancouver and Montreal, in an application it filed in 1957 after the government indicated it would be prepared to consider easing of Trans-Canada's monopoly on lucrative domestic transcontinental runs.

UNREASONABLE BASIS

Dealing with the over-all application of CPA for what the company has described as a modified form of competition with TCA, the air transport board said it was unreasonable to expect the company to operate on a "profitable basis" when the company's expense estimates were computed on an unreasonable basis.

Its schedules, Mr. Hees said, appeared to have been computed on the basis of optimistic speeds, and the board agreed.

Navy to Play For Students

Students at most of Greater Victoria junior and senior high schools will be seranaded next month by the navy.

The famed HMCS Naden band will present one-hour concerts of both classical and popular music at 10 schools, the RCN announced yesterday. The 47-piece band will be under the direction of Commissioned Officer W. Gordon.

The navy hopes the schools-visit program will become an annual event.

Schedule:

Esquimalt Junior-Senior High, Feb. 4; Victoria High, Feb. 5; Central Junior High, Feb. 9; Mt. Douglas High, Feb. 11; S. J. Willis Junior High, Feb. 16; Oak Bay High, Feb. 17; Lansdowne Junior High, Feb. 18; Colquitz Junior High, Feb. 23; Oak Bay Junior High, Feb. 25; Mount View High, Feb. 27.

Hoax Doctor Aided Births

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 28-year-old man who posed as an interne in a Vancouver hospital took part in the delivery of five children before his hoax was discovered, city prosecutor Stewart McMorran said Tuesday.

Jack Brett pleaded guilty in a police court hearing to dealing in a forged document and was remanded until Friday for a pre-sentence report.

Fares Have No Effect On Meetings

Recent increase in bus rates has "nothing at all" to do with cutting in half the number of monthly meetings of the Silver Threads Handicraft Club, Mrs. R. W. Brooks, secretary, said yesterday.

"Four meetings a month are just too much work for the members and those who teach," she explained. "Transportation has nothing to do with it."

The club will meet once every two weeks in Moose Hall, 512 Fort Street. Next meeting will be at 2 p.m., Jan. 29, and thereafter on every second and fourth Thursday of the month.

Pressure Mounting To Keep TCA Here

negotiate with TCA on this question.

Members of Vancouver Island Flower Growers' Association met with Pacific Western Airlines officials yesterday to seek a firm commitment.

"One stroke of the pen, could put out of business a major Vancouver Island industry," Saanich MLA John Tisdalle said at the meeting, which included president Ray Wooldridge, Geoffrey Vantreight and William Mattick.

Mr. Tisdalle said it was agreed that TCA and PWA officials would meet to discuss flower shipments as soon as posible and then would meet with flower growers, who at that time would present the problems as they now exist.

TWO WEEKS

He said he thought the problem would be resolved within two weeks.

Another strong voice in support of continued TCA service was raised last night by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. The Jaycees want TCA to stick with its present Victoria-Vancouver-Seattle service even if another company enters the picture.

At a meeting last night they decided to send telegrams to Transport Minister George Hees, Defence Minister George Pearkes, Victoria MP A. deB. McPhillips and Gordon R. McGregor, president of TCA, urging them to do everything in their power to maintain service on the route.

DESIRING RETENTION

"I'm not against Pacific Western Airlines coming in," Stickney Harris said, "but I move we go on record as desiring retention of the present service.

"If another one comes along, fine, but let's not lose the service we have," he added.

Claim on Jaycees May Be Dropped

The suit for damages totalling $350,000 involving Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce among the named defendants may be dropped without further action, Ray Rawnsley, president, said last night.

Reporting on the situation to a meeting of Jaycees, Mr. Rawnsley said the Junior Chamber's lawyer, A. T. C. Campbell of Vancouver, had told him recently there appeared to be very little to worry about.

Oliver Goldsmith, the Nova Scotia poet who died in 1861, was a grand-nephew of the English poet of the same name.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—After 14 years of retirement from movies, Alice Faye is making her TV debut, sharing the spotlight with husband Phil Harris.

Support Castro Executions

Cubans Flock to Rally

HAVANA (AP) — Workers took the day off in Havana yesterday to stage a massive rally in support of the executions by Cuba's revolutionary government.

Fidel Castro called for 500,000 persons to throng the park in front of the Presidential Palace. The revolutionary leader said this would be Cuba's answer to foreign criticism of swift retribution for those convicted by military courts of crimes against the people during Fulgencio Batista's dictatorship.

The first of a series of public trials in Havana was announced to begin Thursday in the city's 15,000-seat sports palace.

Castro said the rally in Havana would support justice and "demand that the United States return the war criminals."

Exiles Return

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cubans are streaming home from exile in numbers that have consular officials talking of records.

Said acting consul Oscar Ramirez:

"We are doing business as never before. Fees for processing outbound Cubans are running to $2,000 a day. In the days before Batista fell, daily receipts from the same source were $100 to $200."

Reds Ignore Own Problems

U.S. 'Classic' Rapped

MOSCOW (AP)—In the midst of a big shakeup of Russia's national sports organizations, the newspaper Soviet Sports Wednesday ignored that development to criticize America's annual Army-Navy football game.

The official government sports organ said the only winners in the Army-Navy games at Philadelphia are the organizers, who "each year reap huge harvests of dollars while the players receive only cracked ribs and skulls."

The newspaper said the Army-Navy games were responsible for an enmity between the U.S. Army and Navy "so deep that on one occasion a brigadier general challenged an admiral to a duel."

Meanwhile Moscow radio announced that March 1 is the deadline for the scrapping of the physical culture and sports committee attached to the U.S.S.R. council of ministers.

The committee will be replaced by a union of sports societies and organizations. The union will operate with the active participation of trade unions and the Komsomol (the young Communist league).

"Its principal aim will be the further mass scale development of physical culture and sports as one of the most important means of the Communist training of young people and improving the health of working people."

TV TALK

Authentic spy stories are featured in a new series starting over CBUT-TV Channel 2 Tuesday night.

Behind Closed Doors is based on the experiences of Rear Admiral Ellis M. Zacharias, chief of U.S. Naval Intelligence during the Second World War. Admiral Zacharias will be host for the series.

He retired in 1946 and published two experience series, Secret Missions and Behind Closed Doors.

Most of the episodes in the series were filmed in North America but some of them were filmed on foreign locations.

"Oh, well! That's show business!"

Garden Notes

Great Manure Debate

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

My neighbor Ernie is a stubborn [illegible] and we argue constantly every time we meet over practically every aspect of gardening. The other day [illegible] the Gleaning Spoon over a cup of coffee we got into a dog-eat-dog battle over the proper use [illegible]

For his sweet peas for instance Ernie digs a trench deep enough to bury a horse, and he spreads his manure as far down at the bottom of it as possible so that the roots that he expects his sweet pea roots will probe down deep in search of it, enthralled by the aroma, no doubt. I have never been able to convince him that a pile of potato patch manure on top of the ground [illegible]

There are practices I don't go for at all. For one, I don't care much of the practice of incorporating [illegible] the handling of manures. I [illegible] a few important things to keep in mind.

DON'T bury the precious stuff away down deep, for the feeding parts of most plants are [illegible] the top few inches. I feel where the colonies of beneficial soil bacteria are dense. Don't think you can trample the tools to plunge deeply by placing manure down there to attract them, like hanging a carrot in front of a donkey's nose. It doesn't work out that way.

Contrary to Ernie's theory plant roots are NOT attracted to the dung [illegible] merely stop and exploit what manure they encounter by chance. The place for manure is in the top six inches of soil.

DON'T leave the manure in lumps, layers or concentrations in the soil but mix it as intimately with the dirt as you can. The reason for this goes back to the last paragraph. If plant roots encounter a rich vein of humus-rich, they will stop right there and exploit it. If the manure is mixed thoroughly, the roots will forage through the soil more and with an extended root system the plants will suffer less in times of drought.

DON'T mix lime with animal manure before digging it in or you will lose a lot of its goodness. Lime will "tame it down." That's for sure, but you by dissipating its most valuable nitrogen content in the form of gases. The moment that lime hits your manure pile you'd get a strong whiff of ammonia. That's the good news going up in [illegible]

DON'T dig in fresh animal manure immediately before sowing or planting. It has to be decomposed before it can do any good, and it can do a lot of harm to tender young root tips while fresh and "hot." Moreover, the [illegible] LESS [illegible] and it must be decomposed and assimilated before the fertility rises.

One excuse to this rule is that potato blackleg stuff can be used to cover the seed pieces in the furrows for potatoes don't need much fertility in their early stages, and sometimes composted compost or manure seems to be useful in combatting scab.

DON'T allow any kind of manure to stand exposed to the weather. It can't help but lose a lot of its potency by leaching out in the rain and by oxidation, and the stuff is too expensive and too hard to come by for such wasteful practices. If it is too fresh to force it into the soil as soon as it arrives, and the soil is the best storage place for manure, cover the pile with an old tarpaulin, a plastic sheet or even a coat of old gal. Vacuum seem to protect it from the wet.

U.S. Pressure In Alcan Deal?

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Pearson will ask the government for assurances that no U.S. pressure was involved in the decision by the Aluminum Co. of Canada not to sell aluminum to Communist China.

He and the CCF will try to raise the issue in questioning Trade Minister Churchill.

At Montreal, an Alcan spokesman said the company refused a $1,000,000 deal with China because it is not prepared to "hazard relations with its steady customers just to make an immediate sale."

Union Raps Embargo

TORONTO (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America, which represents 8,000 workers with the Aluminum Co. of Canada, yesterday criticized the company for refusing a $1,000,000 order from Communist China.

"The USW regrets any action by a corporation which prolongs unemployment for Canadian workers," said a union statement.

Eisenhower Tells Russia:

Don't Push Us Around

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Eisenhower told the Soviet Union Wednesday the United States is ready to match "reasonableness with reasonableness," but refuses to be pushed around.

That, Eisenhower said at his press conference, was the import of a message he sent to Premier Khrushchev by Anastas I. Mikoyan on the Soviet leader's departure for home from a free-wheeling two-week American tour.

He wanted Mikoyan to take back to Moscow "accurate information" and to make sure Mikoyan knew, Eisenhower said, "that America wants peace, is ready to conciliate, is ready to match reasonableness with reasonableness, but it simply won't be pushed around."

"And I believe," he added, "that he will understand that the American people believe that, just as any official of the government."

At the same time, Eisenhower saw as the great hope for peace the fact, reported to him by Americans returning from the Soviet Union, that "the Russian people as such, want peace as earnestly, as seriously, as we do."

He met Mikoyan for an hour and 45 minutes at the White House last Saturday. There was no attempt at negotiation and no new proposals were offered at that meeting, Eisenhower said.

Concert to Honor Hymn Composer

The composer of "My Humble Cry," a Salvation Army hymn, will hear it played tonight by Vancouver Island Salvation Army songster brigade units.

He is Lt.-Col. Ernst Rance, national secretary for bands and songster brigades for the British Territory since 1950, who arrives this afternoon during a nation-wide tour of Salvation Army musical units.

He will be guest of honor at a festival of music starting at 8 p.m. in the Salvation Army Citadel, 757 Pandora.

The festival, open to the public, will feature band music, a trombone duet, hymns and a commentary by Col. Rance.

A band and songster clinic will be conducted at 7.30 p.m. tomorrow for Salvation Army musicians only.

This time, Col. Rance will act as critic.

Vancouver Funeral For Capt. Webster

Capt. W. R. Webster, 73, for 12 years sergeant-at-arms in the B.C. legislature, died in Vancouver's Shaughnessy Hospital Sunday.

He was appointed deputy sergeant-at-arms in 1935 and served in that capacity until 1940 when he moved up to the higher post. He retired to Vancouver in 1952.

Capt. Webster, born in Woodstock, Ont., served in the 54th Battalion, CEF, during the First World War and in 1944 was deputy returning officer for Canadian troops in Italy for the federal elections.

Funeral services will be held at Vancouver today, with burial in Returned Soldiers' Park, Mountain View Cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, Esperance, at 408 Dallas Road, Victoria; two sons, Roy John of Ottawa and Harold Winston, with the RCAF at Camp Borden; a daughter, Mrs. Joan Wallace of Whalley, B.C.; a sister, Mrs. J. R. Morrow of Redwood City, Calif., and 10 grandchildren.

Mrs. Theresa Purser

Funeral services for Mrs. Theresa Purser, 81, native daughter of Victoria, were held yesterday from Sands funeral home.

Mrs. Purser, who lived at 3231 Oak Street, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Sunday.

For her lifelong residence here, she received a scroll last year from the B.C. Centennial Committee naming her a "pioneer daughter."

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Albert Theobald, and Miss Hilda Purser, at home; a son, Robert, in Saskatchewan.

Mrs. M. M. Waistell

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Mary Waistell, 82, of 2140 Newton, will be held tomorrow at 3 p.m. in McCall Brothers funeral chapel. She died Monday in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Born in Clarksburg, Ontario, and formerly of Edmonton, Alta., she had been a resident of Victoria for the past 15 years.

She was a member of the Metropolitan United Church here and its Women's Auxiliary. She was also a life member of both the Women's Missionary Society and the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Rendezvous In Desert

CAIRO (UPI) — Egyptian authorities yesterday confirmed they had arrested a Canadian sergeant in the UN emergency force for allegedly smuggling three Israeli girls into the Gaza Strip.

A semi-official news agency reported Sgt. Harold Carter and the three girls were arrested at Carter's home, and claimed the girls were smuggled in "to spy on the United Arab Republic."

Tranquillizers Big Business

VANCOUVER (CP)—One-third of all prescriptions written in Canada today are for tranquillizers, a Canadian Mental Health Association official said Tuesday night.

"The figure proves one thing," executive secretary George Kenwood told a service club. "Mental disorders are becoming too large a problem for people to ignore much longer."

PLEAS, PRESSURE MOUNTING TO KEEP TCA IN VICTORIA

Departure 'Unthinkable' Says Publicity Chief

Strong pleas to Trans-Canada Air Lines to maintain its Victoria-Vancouver-Seattle plane service are being made by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau.

And the Junior Chamber of Commerce has urged TCA to continue its service here.

"It's unthinkable they should even consider for a minute leaving here," bureau commissioner George I. Warren said last night.

Pleas of both organizations were stated in telegrams to TCA president G. R. McGregor in Montreal.

Text of the wire from G. Conway Parrott, chamber president, stated: "This chamber appreciates the service TCA has offered here in the past and urges an early reconsideration by the directors of your indicated decision to withdraw from the coast service."

MEETING YESTERDAY

Meetings took place yesterday between officials of PWA and various interested Victoria parties, including the Chamber of Commerce.

Questions were asked about the adequacy of PWA's equipment to handle the vagaries of the Victoria-Vancouver traffic, particularly in emergencies such as occurred last summer during the ferry strike.

Assurances were also asked that PWA would provide connecting facilities with TCA trans-continental flights.

It was pointed out that PWA's proposed daily schedule called for the first flight to leave Pat Bay each day at 8 a.m.

ATLANTIC MERCURY

This would not allow Victoria passengers to board the popular TCA Atlantic Mercury which leaves Vancouver each day at 8 a.m., unless TCA made its own connection with Pat Bay.

A PWA spokesman said the proposed schedule was only tentative and could be adapted to meet community requirements.

Mr. Warren's wire did not mention the application of PWA to take over the triangle air service between the three cities, but clearly indicated fear the tourist business would suffer if TCA abandons the service.

". . . Victoria has been progressively increasing its tourist business," the wire said, in part. "During the past years it has appreciated the services operated by TCA between Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

". . . the many citizens of this area are extremely disappointed at the recent announcement that TCA might withdraw these services and we earnestly ask you and your directors to reconsider and to continue to operate this needed and appreciated service."

Mr. Warren said it had always been considered that Victoria was the western terminus of TCA.

"Now they are taking that away from us," he said.

FIRST LOAD

William Mattick, local bulb farmer, who shipped the first load of Easter daffodils to eastern Canada by TCA in 1948, and who has used this service ever since, said he was disturbed by the proposed changes.

He asked if PWA would guarantee that the rate of moving flowers to the east would not be increased if it took over the TCA Victoria-Vancouver flight.

"At present it costs only 50 cents a hundred pounds extra for us to ship to the east from Victoria than it does from Vancouver," he said. "I want to know if PWA will ship daffodils for transhipment to TCA in Vancouver for only 50 cents a hundred pounds, which is what we are paying just now."

Mr. Mattick said that officials promised him they would

Rains Empty Cities

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Thousands of people were evacuated from their homes in Ohio Wednesday night as heavy rains caused rivers and streams to overflow into cities and rural areas.

Bridges and dikes collapsed under the torrent of water.

By far the hardest hit town was Mount Vernon where an estimated one-third of the city's 15,000 people were removed from their homes.

Tornadoes or tornadic winds ripped into Mississippi, Alabama and Kentucky.

St. Louis was nearly paralyzed by sleet and freezing rain that snapped power lines and made streets and highways dangerous.

The vast storm ranged from the Rockies to the Appalachians and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf states. A sub-zero cold wave, promising temperatures down to 25 degrees below zero, moved into the plains behind the storm front.

There was no real let-up in sight. The U.S. weather bureau forecast more snow, sleet and freezing rains in the north and thunderstorms, plus possible tornadoes, through parts of Tennessee, Georgia, the western Carolinas, southeast Kentucky and southern Virginia.

Reports of industrial paralysis and endangered communities came from throughout the midwest and the Ohio River Valley.

In Chicago, a riot developed when a bus was rescheduled because of the storm. The bus tried to pass a gang of 20 teen-agers going home from high school. When the bus was forced to stop, a youth inside pulled the emergency cord. The youths stormed into the bus and beat and kicked the driver and a passenger who tried to assist him.

Monopoly Cracked

CPA to Fly TCA Route

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian Pacific Airlines Wednesday cracked Trans-Canada Air Lines' long-held monopoly on transcontinental service, but got only a part of what it wanted.

Privately-owned CPA will be allowed to move into a limited amount of main-line territory in Canada previously held for the publicly-owned TCA, Transport Minister Hees announced in the Commons.

FIRST CHINK

The step, backing up a finding of the air transport board, opened up the first chink in TCA's transcontinental main-line monopoly since the public company was founded in 1935.

As the board put it after a hot fight between CPA and TCA—and as approved by the transport minister — CPA should operate a scheduled

A message of congratulation was sent yesterday to Canadian Pacific Airlines by Victoria Chamber of Commerce on the company's success in acquiring the right to operate a transcontinental service.

Doukhobor Trek

Russia Silent On Sect

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has received no indication whatever from Russia that it would accept emigrating members of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect, Justice Minister Fulton said Wednesday.

He was replying in the Commons to Harold Winch (CCF-Vancouver East) who asked whether the government offer of financial assistance for emigrating Doukhobors still stands.

Mr. Fulton said representatives of the Doukhobor sect have been informed that the offer of passage assistance still stands, "when and if they fulfil the conditions."

One of these is that the Canadian government must receive an indication from the Soviet government that it is ready to accept the Freedomites in Russia.

At Trail, the Kootenay and Boundary Citizens' Committee decided to ask the B.C. government to set an Aug. 15 deadline on an offer under which Doukhobors may get preferential treatment in buying lands on which they now live.

The committee believes that after Aug. 15 the lands should be thrown open for public purchase.

LONDON (UPI)—Randolph Churchill, son of Sir Winston Churchill, got his election campaign off to a false start yesterday when he started politicking in the wrong district.

He called a press conference at a Bournemouth hotel to announce his arrival to "test the political temperature." He said he hoped the local voters would call on him to discuss the state of things in Bournemouth East.

"They won't come here," a reporter told him.

"Why not?" asked Churchill.

"Well, this is Bournemouth West."

"Well," replied Churchill, "I must get a map and sally forth."

'Close to an Abuse'

Judge Rebukes B.C. Government

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government was chastised in open court Wednesday by a B.C. Supreme Court justice for its on-and-off legal action over a brief plywood mill strike.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson said the government's decision not to proceed in the case comes "pretty close to an abuse of the process of the court."

Labor Minister Wicks applied last Friday for the court to rule on the legality of a wildcat strike by 400 members of the International Woodworkers of America at nearby Port Moody plant of Canadian Collieries Resources Limited.

The men walked out Wednesday because an employee was dismissed for carelessness. They returned to work Monday and Mr. Wicks announced he was dropping the court action.

The action was scheduled to have been heard Wednesday.

"That is all very well, but there was a point of law to be determined," Mr. Justice Manson said.

The justice said that in future such cases, he will want assurance "that the proceedings are something more than a mere threat." The court took a "serious view" of the discontinuance and did not "regard the fact that the strike has been settled as good cause" for the government action.

Attitude to Burns 'Mean,' Cries Scott

LONDON (Reuters) — The government came under fire in the House of Commons on Wednesday night for its "miserable" attitude to the 200th anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns.

The government is having letters mailed Jan. 25 at Burns' birthplace of Alloway postmarked "Alloway, Ayr," instead of just "Ayr."

South Ayrshire's Labor MP, Emrys Hughes, called it a "mean and miserable so-called concession."

If the post office could not publish a stamp of Burns, would it allow use of Russian stamps commemorative of Burns, he asked.

Close Strait to Fishing? U.S. Idea 'Bad-Mannered'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Americans stirred up a hornet's nest at an open meeting of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission here Wednesday with a proposal that the Strait of Juan de Fuca be closed for all net fishing.

Members of the American advisory board, which speaks for the salmon industry but has no regulatory powers, said Canadian fishermen are depleting Puget Sound stocks of pink and coho salmon in what they called "nursery" waters.

In normal years Canadian seiners get the bulk of their Fraser River catch in Juan de Fuca Strait around Port San Juan and Sooke.

They said it would be impossible to regulate a 50-50 division of the pink and sockeye catches between Canadians and Americans if Canadians were barred from their own most valuable fishing grounds.

No Change Likely

MPs Complaining Over Royal Trip

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker Wednesday turned aside Commons' complaints about places omitted from the itinerary of the Queen's visit to Canada this summer.

He said it was impossible to make changes from day to day to meet various members' requests. The trip was to enable the Queen to see as much of Canada as possible consistent with comfort and "reasonable rest."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he could not hold out hope of any "material alteration in regard to the itinerary as already published."

Disappointed Says Bennett

Premier Bennett said yesterday he is disappointed the provincial government was not consulted by Ottawa about the itinerary of Queen Elizabeth's July visit.

The premier said he has received numerous complaints. People are blaming B.C. for leaving out certain communities, he said.

Homburg Will Be Badge of Office in Today's Big Show

The homburg hat has almost become a badge of office for provincial cabinet ministers and the wearers will become the stars of the big show when the legislature opens at 3 p.m. today and continues for about eight weeks. Provincial Secretary Wesley Black has had years of experience wearing a homburg hat and as an able politician knows exactly the right angle to wear it. Highways Minister Gaglardi seldom wears a hat, but likes the dress plaid tam o'shanter presented him at caucus yesterday by Comox MLA Dan Campbell, on behalf of Comox Valley Fair Association. Bare-headed Mr. Gaglardi opened the fair last fall in drenching rain. Victoria MLA Donald Smith is not a cabinet minister but has a liking for homburgs. CCF and Opposition Leader Robert Strachan says he is a "working man" and even when he becomes premier he thinks he will stick to the fedora hat. Pomp and pageantry of the legislature opening will start at 2 p.m. when RCAF Station Comox guard-of-honor and color party will display the Queen's color and the RCAF color. $100,000 Seiner Sunk

Vessels Break Down

Sea Jinx Harries Fishing Family

TOFINO—Sea jinx hit three members of the Arnet family of Tofino fishermen within the space of a few hours and in the same herring fishing area near here.

Hardest hit was Edgar Arnet, now of West Vancouver, owner-skipper of the 71-foot seiner Kodiak which was holed and sank in 50 fathoms off Amphitrite Point on Tuesday night.

He and his son, George, and two crew members, Hans Nicholson and Jonas Thompson of Vancouver, were picked up after they escaped from the sinking seiner in a lifeboat.

It is believed the $100,000 vessel struck a submerged log. She carried to the bottom the same diesel engines that powered the famous RCMP vessel St. Roch when she made her historic voyage through the Northwest Passage.

Hours earlier Bjarne Arnet, now of 3865 Carey Road, Saanich, skipper of the fishpacker Confisco, had to call for a tow when the vessel broke down during a storm.

The Confisco was towed safely to Port Alberni for repairs.

Third brother hit in the run of misfortune was Trygve Arnet, 324 Vincent, Saanich, mate of the seiner Pacific Sunset, which broke down off Ucluelet, about the same time and was taken under tow for Vancouver.

The three are members of the well-known family of Arnet brothers, five of whom are fishermen and the sixth, Walter, an ex-fisherman, now a member of the Tofino lifeboat crew.

The lifeboat was one of eight vessels which went to the aid of the sinking Kodiak, but it did not play a part in the rescue.

Rescue of the four from the seiner was carried out by the tug Tahsis Chief. She picked up the fishermen from a perilous refuge in a lifeboat that had been holed while it was being put hastily over the side of the stricken Kodiak.

The owner said last night there was no chance to salvage the Kodiak, one of the top vessels in the B.C. halibut fleet.

15.78 Per Cent

City Hall Staff Seeking Raise

A 15.78-per-cent pay-increase for this year is being sought by the City Hall Employees' Association, representing the city hall inside staff.

That figure represents the difference between city pay scales for the inside staff and pay scales in 10 comparable Victoria firms plus 5 per cent to allow for 1959 adjustments, an association official said yesterday.

Pay scales of seven of the firms were used in a 1952 survey, he said, and by recent comparison with only those seven, the city staff's increase should be 14.41 per cent.

The city's outside workers and policemen—and presumably firemen—made roughly equivalent demands earlier.

The outside workers' association is seeking an across-the-board increase of 28 cents an hour, believed to be about 16 per cent.

The policemen have asked for an increase of 15.9 per cent, and although the firemen's demand has not been disclosed, it usually parallels the policemen's.

The police union deals directly with the city police commission. The other employees all are negotiating with City Manager C. C. Wyatt.

Bennett, John D. Meet A Week from Today

Premier Bennett said yesterday he will fly to Ottawa a week from today for a meeting with Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

He said provincial economic adviser J. V. Fisher will accompany him, and the meeting with the prime minister will be Jan. 30.

The premier described the meeting as "a general discussion . . . not for coming up with any agreements."

"The federal system will only work when there is good co-operation between the federal government and the provinces, and our province is ready to co-operate 100 per cent with any federal government . . . no matter what political party it might represent," he said.

It is believed that among other things they will discuss federal financial support for the PGE, a federal contribution to last summer's fire-fighting costs and winter unemployment problems. The premier will undoubtedly urge a quick solution to Columbia River power development problems.

DUNCAN—Representatives of the retail automobile association—zone chairman Lee Seizler and Bob Evans—protested the city's new trade licence bylaw at Tuesday's council meeting.

The delegates said the licence rates affecting garages and service stations had been increased from 40 per cent to more than 100 per cent in some cases.

The delegation also asked council to control the number of outlets by refusing to licence any more service stations or gasoline pumps.

Mayor J. T. Dobson told Mr. Seizler that if the council had limited the number of service stations "you yourself would not be in business now."

The mayor said he could not understand the attitude of the oil companies in their widespread expansion of gasoline outlets—"they do not seem to care for anybody but themselves."

Council decided to take the protests of the garagemen into consideration when finalizing the bylaw.

Roads Tricky Today

Many Accidents, Seven Injured

Snow, rain and poor visibility combined to cause a flurry of accidents yesterday and police warned motorists to use caution today.

More than a dozen accidents were reported on lower Vancouver Island. Seven were hurt, three of them pedestrians.

Low temperatures overnight were expected to make driving conditions icy and hazardous. Almost two inches of snow fell on the Malahat highway yesterday, and police said a slight rainfall could produce treacherous roads.

Light snow fell during the day in all parts of Greater Victoria, but rain during the afternoon melted most of it.

In Victoria, city police reported more than six accidents.

Three persons were injured, none seriously, in a three-car accident at 11.25 a.m. at Blanshard and Kings Road.

They were Mrs. Barbara Shea, 30, of 3780 Carey, and Andrew Corrie, 43, and Mrs. May Corrie, 41, both of 1378 Hillside.

Second accident in Victoria occurred when a panel truck being pushed west on Superior went out of control, hit two fences and a parked car.

Steering the truck was Mrs. Anita Hack, 24, of 218 Kingston, who was treated for shock and abrasions and released from St. Joseph's Hospital.

The car struck a wooden fence at 426 St. Lawrence, hit a steel pole bordering the McColl Frontenac Oil Co. property, at 120 Kingston, then stopped after hitting a company car in the driveway.

On the Malahat, snow is blamed for causing a collision of two small trucks and an Island Freight semi-trailer near Hall's Boat Rentals.

Pedestrians injured were Mrs. Mary Sokalski, 50, 433 Kingston, head and back injuries; Mary Carlson, 50, 3073 Albina, and John Wareing, 53, 2337 Heron, both with bruises and shock.

In Saanich, an army truck driven by Pte. George Wilkinson, RCASC, Albert Head, sheared off a telephone pole on West Saanich Road near the observatory at 4.50 p.m.

Departure 'Unthinkable' Says Publicity Chief

Strong pleas to Trans-Canada Air Lines to maintain its Victoria-Vancouver-Seattle plane service are being made by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau.

And the Junior Chamber of Commerce has urged TCA to continue its service here.

"It's unthinkable they should even consider for a minute leaving here," bureau commissioner George I. Warren said last night.

Pleas of both organizations were stated in telegrams to TCA president G. R. McGregor in Montreal.

Text of the wire from G. Conway Parrott, chamber president, stated: "This chamber appreciates the service TCA has offered here in the past and urges an early reconsideration by the directors of your indicated decision to withdraw from the coast service."

MEETING YESTERDAY

Meetings took place yesterday between officials of PWA and various interested Victoria parties, including the Chamber of Commerce.

Questions were asked about the adequacy of PWA's equipment to handle the vagaries of the Victoria-Vancouver traffic, particularly in emergencies such as occurred last summer during the ferry strike.

Assurances were also asked that PWA would provide connecting facilities with TCA transcontinental flights.

It was pointed out that PWA's proposed daily schedule called for the first flight to leave Patricia Bay each day at 8 a.m.

ATLANTIC MERCURY

This would not allow Victoria passengers to board the popular TCA Atlantic Mercury which leaves Vancouver each day at 8 a.m., unless TCA made its own connection with Pat Bay.

A PWA spokesman said the proposed schedule was only tentative and could be adapted to meet community requirements.

Mr. Warren's wire did not mention the application of PWA to take over the triangle air service between the three cities, but clearly indicated fear the tourist business would suffer if TCA abandons the service.

". . . Victoria has been progressively increasing its tourist business," the wire said, in part. "During the past years, it has appreciated the services operated by TCA between Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

". . . the many citizens of this area are extremely disappointed at the recent announcement that TCA might withdraw these services and we earnestly ask you and your directors to reconsider and to continue to operate this needed and appreciated service."

Mr. Warren said it had always been considered that Victoria was the western terminus of TCA.

"Now they are taking that away from us," he said.

FIRST LOAD

William Mattick, local bulb farmer, who shipped the first load of Easter daffodils to eastern Canada by TCA in 1948, and who has used this service ever since, said he was disturbed by the proposed changes.

He asked if PWA would guarantee that the rate of moving flowers to the east would not be increased if it took over the TCA Victoria-Vancouver flight.

"At present it costs only 50 cents a hundred pounds extra for us to ship to the east from Victoria than it does from Vancouver," he said. "I want to know if PWA will ship daffodils for transhipment to TCA in Vancouver for only 50 cents a hundred pounds, which is what we are paying just now."

Mr. Mattick said that officials promised him they would

Attitude to Burns 'Mean,' Cries Scot

LONDON (Reuters) — The government came under fire in the House of Commons on Wednesday night for its "miserable" attitude to the 200th anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns.

If the post office could not publish a stamp of Burns, would it allow use of Russian stamps commemorative of Burns, he asked.

Mikoyan Across

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Anastas Mikoyan arrived early today aboard a Scandinavian Airlines replacement plane on his interrupted journey home from the U.S.

The plane was sent to Argentia, Newfoundland, to pick up 35 passengers, including Mikoyan, forced down for a night after another plane developed engine trouble.

Close Strait to Fishing? U.S. Idea 'Bad-Mannered'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Americans stirred up a hornet's nest at an open meeting of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission here Wednesday with a proposal that the Strait of Juan de Fuca be closed for all net fishing.

Members of the American advisory board, which speaks for the salmon industry but has no regulatory powers, said Canadian fishermen are depleting Puget Sound stocks of pink and coho salmon in what they called "nursery" waters.

In normal years Canadian seiners get the bulk of their Fraser River catch in Juan de Fuca Strait around Port San Juan and Sooke.

They said it would be impossible to regulate a 50-50 division of the pink and sockeye catches between Canadians and Americans if Canadians were barred from their own most valuable fishing grounds.

No Change Likely

MPs Complaining Over Royal Trip

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker Wednesday turned aside Commons' complaints about places omitted from the itinerary of the Queen's visit to Canada this summer.

He said it was impossible to make changes from day to day to meet various members' requests. The trip was to enable the Queen to see as much of Canada as possible consistent with comfort and "reasonable rest."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he could not hold out hope of any "material alteration in regard to the itinerary as already published."

Disappointed Says Bennett

Premier Bennett said yesterday he is disappointed the provincial government was not consulted by Ottawa about the itinerary of Queen Elizabeth's July visit.

The premier said he has received numerous complaints. People are blaming B.C. for leaving out certain communities, he said.
